EASTON'S THERESA HUMES INVITATIONAL TOURNAMENT HISTORY

For the past twenty-two years, teams from all over North America have been gathering at Concordia University to compete in the Theresa Humes Invitational tournament, one of the most historic and prestigious women's hockey championships on the continent. Throughout its rich history it has set the standard for excellence in women's hockey.

The McGill Martlets, then called the Squaws, skated to victory in each of the first three years of the tournament. Their domination ended in 1972 when the Panda's from Brown University became the first, in a long list, of American teams to win the championship.

In 1977, the Concordia Stingers won their second title - the first came in 1974 - but their bid for a third ended the following year in dramatic and heart-breaking fashion when the Colby College Mules scored with one second remaining in the final game.

In response to the rapid growth in women's hockey, organizers expanded the tournament from four to eight teams in 1981. The Providence Friar's captured the first title under this new format, followed by consecutive York Yeowomen victories. York's 1983 championship win over the Potsdam College State Bears is one of the most memorable in tournament history and is the last by a Canadian team. Sue Harling of York scored in the second overtime period to bring the game to a dramatic close.

The Northeastern Huskies and Providence Lady Friars dominated the "winner's circle" in the late eighties, sharing seven titles. In 1987, the two teams met in a thrilling, fast-paced and intense final. It took two periods of overtime before Providence scored the winner and layed claim to its fourth and final championship.

The New Hampshire Wildcats and the Concordia Stingers were also very competitive throughout the eighties. The Wildcats reached five finals, winning the championship in 1989; while the Stingers experienced their finest tournament since 1976 when they stormed through the 1988 preliminaries and faced Northeastern in the final game. Concordia could not manage a victory despite Therese Brisson's outstanding performance. Northeastern was one goal better in a 5 to 4 victory en route to its first of three championships. Brisson skated away with her second M.V.P. award, making her the tournament's first and only two-time recipient.

This year's event, the 23rd, has the potential to be the best ever. Joining the Concordia Stingers (last year's Q.S.S.F. Champions) will be the best teams in Canada and the United States including: the University of New Hampshire (1990 E.C.A.C. champions); Providence (E.C.A.C. finalists); Northeastern (E.C.A.C semi-finalists); the University of Toronto (1990 Ontario champions); Queen's University (2nd in the O.W.I.A.A. in 1990); York University (3rd in the O.W.I.A.A in 1990) and McMaster University, 1978 tournament champions. All of these teams have a legitimate shot at the title and as a result, many observers are heralding this tournament as the unofficial North American championship.

Concordia University would like to take this opportunity to thank Easton Sports for its support. Their involvement in the Theresa Humes Invitational reinforces the standard of excellence that has become synonymous with the event.

PROVIDENCE LADY FRIARS OUTLOOK

The Providence College Lady Friars are traditionally one of the strongest teams in the ECAC and won more Theresa Humes championships in the 1980's than any other team.

This year, the Lady Friars are young, with only four seniors. This hasn't slowed the team, however. Currently they are 9 and 2 and have allowed only 15 goals against.

Two players to watch for at the tournament are, Beth Beagan and Cammi Granato. Beagan, a constant scoring threat, has seven goals and 12 assists on the season (19 points). Granato, the 1990 ECAC Rookie of the Year, has picked up where she left off, scoring eight goals and adding another 11 assists (19 points).

Senior co-captain, Lisa Paccione has also been impressive scoring five goals and 11 assists (16 points), while Junior Laurie Lashomb has returned from an injury to contribute nine goals and six assists for 15 points.

TORONTO BLUES OUTLOOK

The University of Toronto Blues return to the Theresa Humes Invitational after a seven year hiatus and have their sights clearly aimed at a tournament championship. They will be a tough team to beat. Joining a strong nucleus of returning players is an impressive collection of new skaters, including: Stephanie Boyd, the top highschool prospect in Ontario last season; Vicky Sunohara, a member of the World Championship team from Canada and a former player at Northeastern; and Andria Hunter, a former captain at the University of New Hampshire, ECAC champions in 1987 and 1990.

Dave McMaster, in his sixteenth season with the Blues, has won nine of the last eleven OWIAA league titles and was the head coach of Team Canada, Gold medalists at the first-ever World Championship held in Ottawa last March.

Look for exciting and disciplined hockey from the Blues throughout the tournament.

NORTHEASTERN HUSKIES OUTLOOK

Along with the Providence Lady Friars, the Huskies from Northeastern have dominated the "winner's circle" at the Theresa Humes Invitational tournament in recent years.

They captured their third title in five years in 1990 on the strength of consecutive victories over: Ottawa (3-0); Concordia (5-4 in double overtime); and New Hampshire (8-4 in the final game).

Laura Schueler, last year's tournament M.V.P., and eight other returning players will be fighting for their second straight championship at this year's event. Only three other teams in tournament history (McGill, Providence and York) have accomplished this feat.

Head coach Don MacLeod, who directed Team U.S.A at the first-ever World Championships, will call upon promising rookies this season to replace Vicki Sunohara, Susie Perkins and Julie Piantentini; the Friar's top three scorers last season.

MCMMASTER MARAUDERS OUTLOOK

The Marauders make their return to the Theresa Humes Invitational after a seven year absence. Prior to that they were a regular entry in the event and a constant threat to skate away with the championship.

This year, the Marauders are looking for their second tournament title - their first came in 1978 - and will meet the Concordia Stingers in the opening round of competition.

The team is struggling this season in the highly competitive OWIAA with only one point in their first 7 games. Many of these losses, however, were tightly contested, one goal games that could just as easily gone the other way.

At this point the team's aim is to finish the season strongly and earn a playoff berth. After that, anything can happen.

Players to look for during the tournament are Kelly Borutski, Michelle Moulton, Hali Adair and goaltender Sandy Staniforth.

QUEEN'S GOLDEN GAEL'S OUTLOOK

Queen's is coming off a very strong 1989-90 campaign during which it compiled the best record in the OWIAA with 14 wins against 2 losses. On the strength of this performance the Gael's received a bye to the finals, where they lost to a powerful University of Toronto team in a best of three series.

This season, Queen's is once again in the hunt for the OWIAA Championship. An impressive crop of talented veterans and promising rookies are causing the team's coaches - Anne Symes and Diane Drury - to expect exciting things from the Gael's at this year's tournament.

Returning to the team in 1990-91 are the top three scorers in league play last season: Jules Stevens (15 goals, 16 assists, 31 points); Sue Patterson (11 goals, 11 assists, 22 points) and Tanya Casey (11 goals, eight assists, 19 points). Also returning to the team and providing support behind the blueline is the Gibson connection. Charlyn plays in goal, while sister Sherry patrols the point.

CONCORDIA STINGERS OUTLOOK

Head coach, Les Lawton and his Concordia Stingers are well on the way to their fourth League Championship in five years. The team has been absolutely overpowering this season scoring 61 goals and allowing only 8 against in 9 league games.

The Stingers won their last tournament championship in 1976 and have been seeking the coveted and elusive prize ever since.

They came close in 1986, only to lose to Northeastern 5 to 4 in the final game. Solid team defence and an opportunistic offence will make the team a legitimate contender this year.

Laura Leslie, Stephanie Ouellette, Lisa Devison and Sue Lepage will lead the Stinger's on offence, while team captain Patty Arnold, Lynn Mageau and converted forward Debbie Woods-Turner will lend support on defence. Look for goalie M.C. Roy to play a major role in the Stinger's championship drive.

NEW HAMPSHIRE WILDCATS OUTLOOK

Despite losing three tremendous offensive players to graduation, University of New Hampshire head coach, Russ McCurdy, is confident that his team has the personnel to repeat as ECAC champions. The Wildcats are also eager to avenge their loss in the final of last year's Theresa Humes Invitational tournament.

It looks as though they may have the guns to do it. Karen Bye, the team's leading scorer and a tournament All-Star in 1990, headlines an impressive list of offensive players that includes senior Karen Akre, sophomore Colleen Coyne and Freshman Sue Merz, the youngest member to participate with Team U.S.A. in last year's World Championship.

On Defence, the Wildcats will be very strong. Returning to the club are, U.S. National Team member, Shawna Davidson; team captain Ellen Weinberg; and a group of dependable veterans.

ECAC All-Conference goalie Erin Whitten will once again be called upon to patrol the nets.

YORK YEOWOMEN OUTLOOK

The Yeowomen's history at the Theresa Humes Invitational is rich indeed. Their four championships are the most by any Canadian team and only Providence College can boast as many titles.

They are one of only three teams to win back-to-back championships, having accomplished this feat in the early 1980's.

This season, York is in fourth place in the highly-competitive OWIAA with a record of 2 wins, 9 losses and 2 ties and is hungry to capture its fifth Theresa Humes Invitational.

Debbie Maybury, in her fourth year with the Yeowomen, will have the team at the top of its game, ready to accept the challenges of one of the most rigorous and competitive tournaments in North America. Look for OWIAA 1st team All-Star Marni Barrow, and 2nd team All-Star forward Michelle Campbell to provide team leadership throughout the tournament.
